

Note from AFA President – Mitchell Institute, ORL, Blog

Saturday, March 7, 2009

AFA Members, Congressional staffers, Civic Leaders, and DOCA Members, recently AFA's Mitchell Institute released a study on Airpower in Afghanistan. The report, by Dr. Rebecca Grant, is exceptional. It shows the innovation the Air Force has made to better support the joint warfighter. It also highlights the many contributions of our sister Services. It can be found at this link: <http://www.afa.org/Mitchell/Reports/0209airpowerinafghan.pdf> [Caution - the file is large -- 1.9 Megs]

Secondly, AFA held a very successful symposium in Orlando last week. If you were not able to make it, we have loaded many of the presentations on the web at this site: http://www.afa.org/events/aws/2009/post_orlando/default.asp If you have limited time, I commend to you Secretary Donley's and Gen Schwartz's talks.

Finally, many of you respond back to my notes ... sometimes with thoughtful and lengthy responses. As you know, I answer almost every responder. However, some of the points you make would be useful to share with others. For this reason, we have created a BLOG site. It can be found at: <http://www.airforceassociation.blogspot.com/> No idea is off-limits ... except for objectionable language.

Best

Mike
