

Air Force Association

The Air Force Association is an independent, non-profit civilian organization - primarily concerned with public understanding that a strong national defense is essential to protect the rights guaranteed to all Americans by the Constitution.

Founded in 1946, AFA has grown and counts among its over 190,000 members a diverse group who believe in our common purpose. While we are a Veteran's group, we have many members who have never served with the armed forces but who believe in our goals.

The Association's over 300 chapters, along with our Aerospace Education Foundation, recognize the technological demands of the future and are taking actions to increase the interest in aerospace education.

We Welcome You

Aerospace Education Foundation

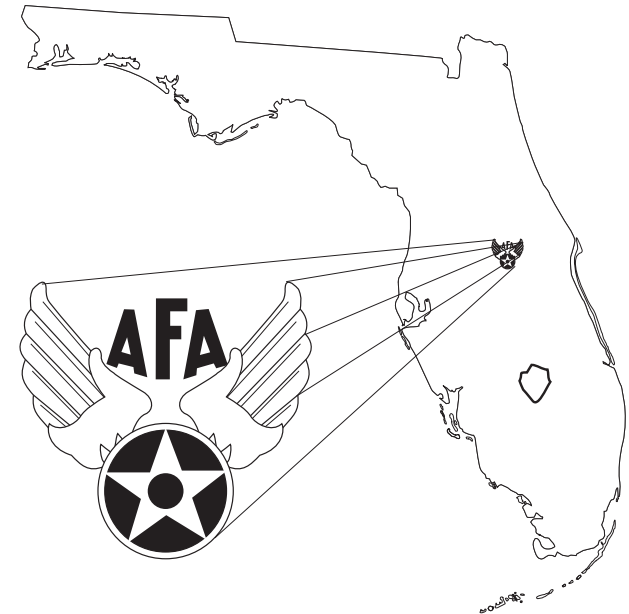

The Aerospace Education Foundation is a tax-exempt affiliate of the Air Force Association. Established in 1956, AEF sponsors scholarships, technical studies, symposia, and educator workshops are designed to promote aerospace education. Each of these is aimed at meeting the needs for scientific and technological expertise of the future.

Nationally acclaimed studies such as "Lifeline In Danger" and America's Next Crises" clarify the need for maintaining our Nation's technological advantage through the careful planning of resources and the credible training of our future work force, our most important resource.

AEF meets the needs on literally hundreds of students who attend graduate study programs across our nation.

You can help meet these national scholarship needs through "tax deductible" contributions.
